

PHASE 2 PROJECT

MOVIE INDUSTRY ANALYSIS

Presented by: Kuira Franklin Kabiru

About the Data Set

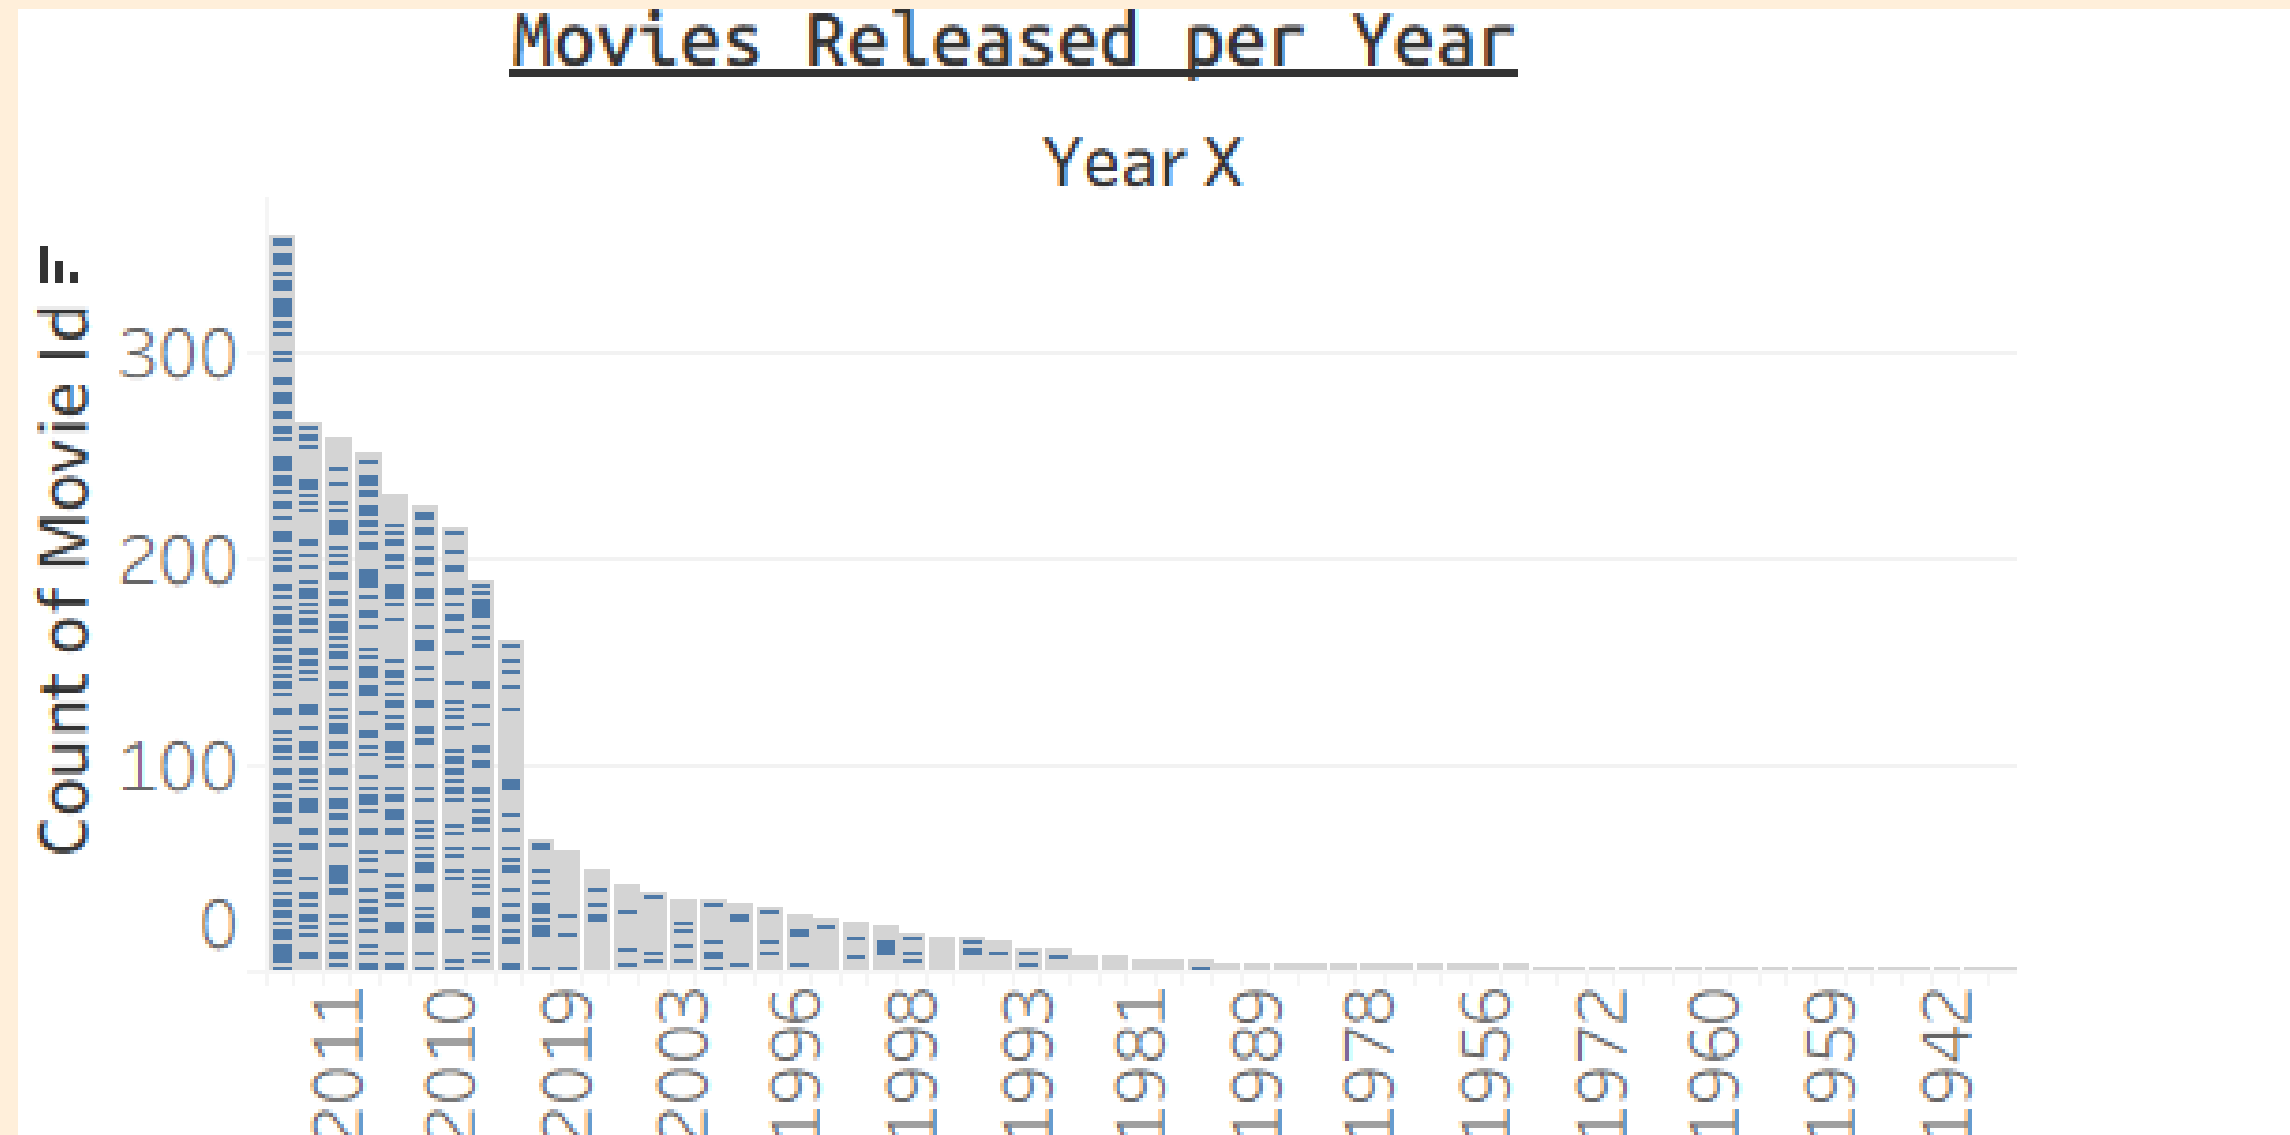

This analysis uses cleaned movie data combining:

- Budgets(Production,Domestic and Worldwide
- Profits and Return on Investment
- Genre Classification
- IMDb ratings
- Studios and Release Years

This data ranges from various years and studios to uncover business trends in the Film Industry.

Movies Released per Year

How Many Movies Were Released Each Year

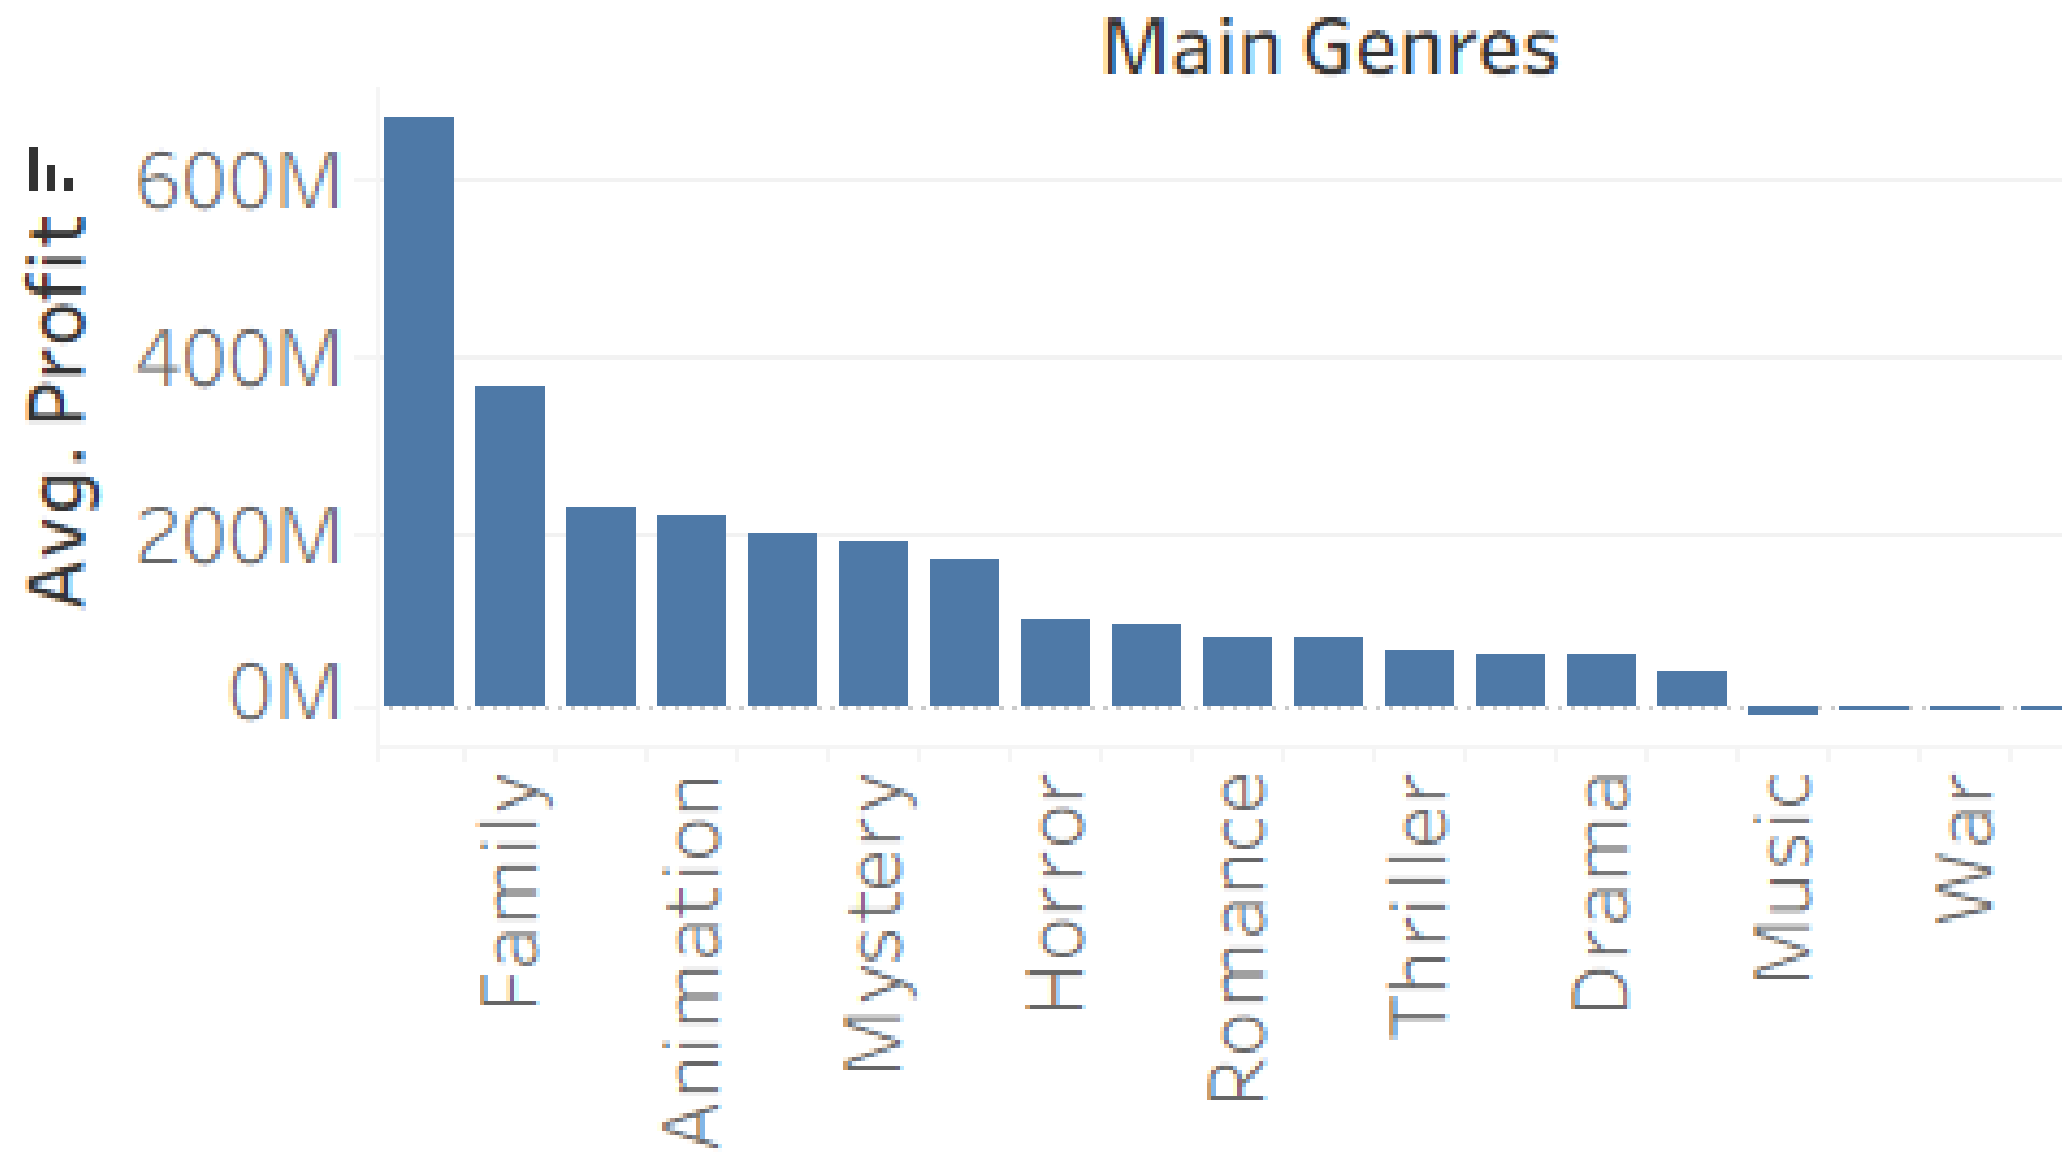

Production of movies peaked in 2011 and remained strong through the 2010's. This trend reflects the industry's growing investment in blockbuster releases

Average Profit by Genre

Which Genre's were most Profitable

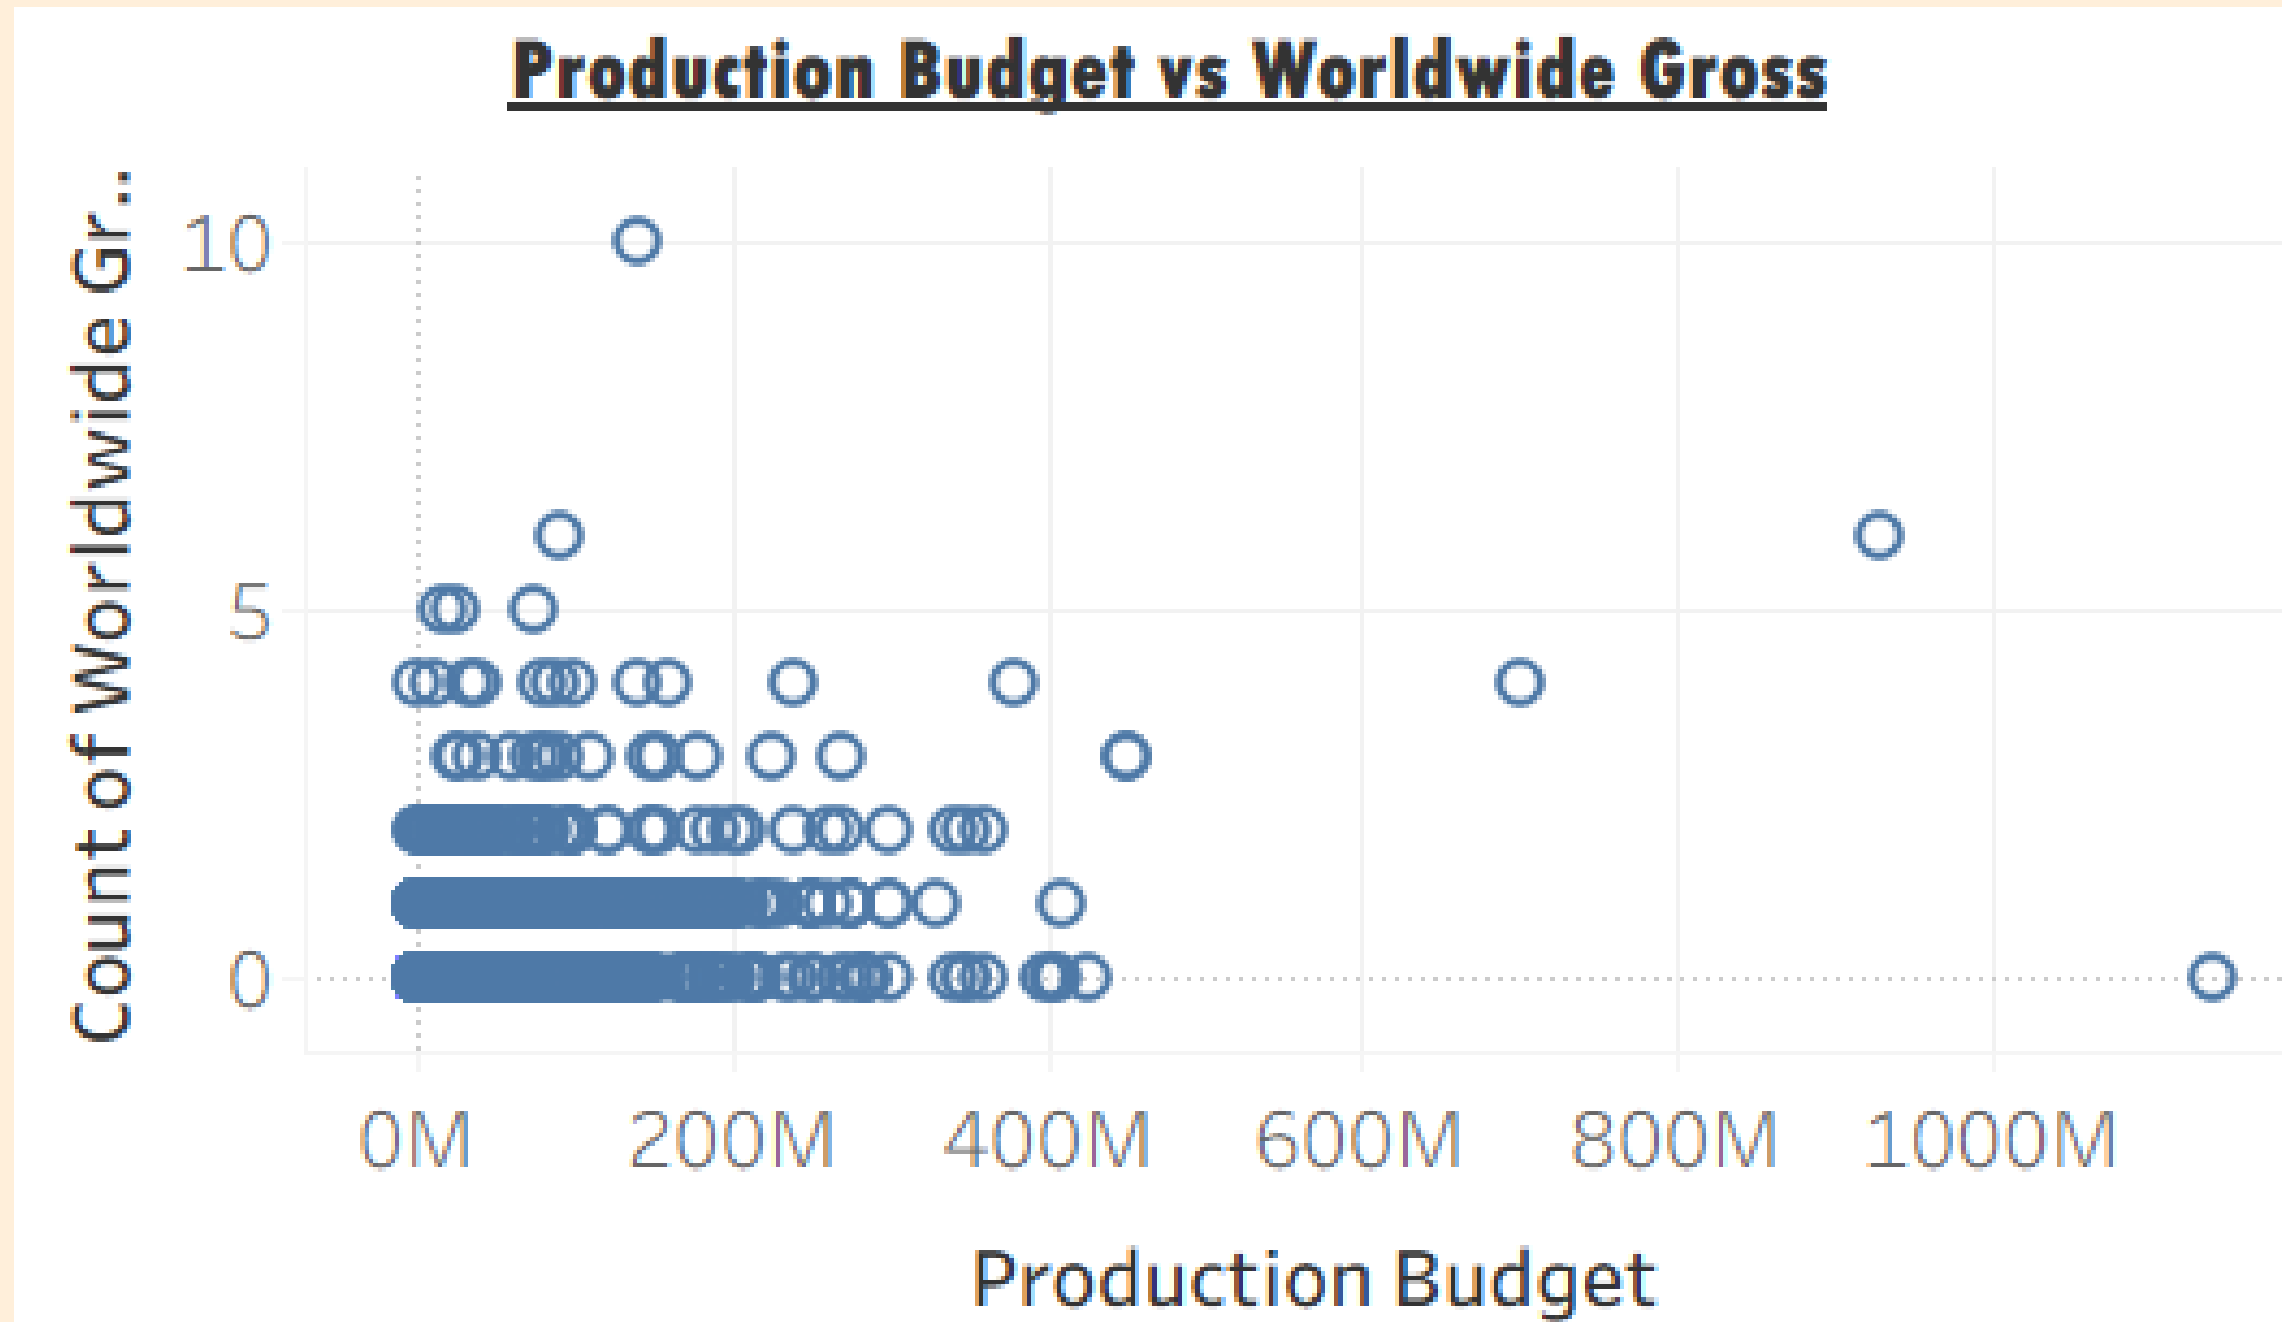

Average Profit by Main Genre

Genres like Action and Adventure yield the highest average profits. Studios heavily invest in these due to global appeal and merchandising opportunities

Budget vs Worldwide Gross

Does Higher Budget Mean Higher Revenue

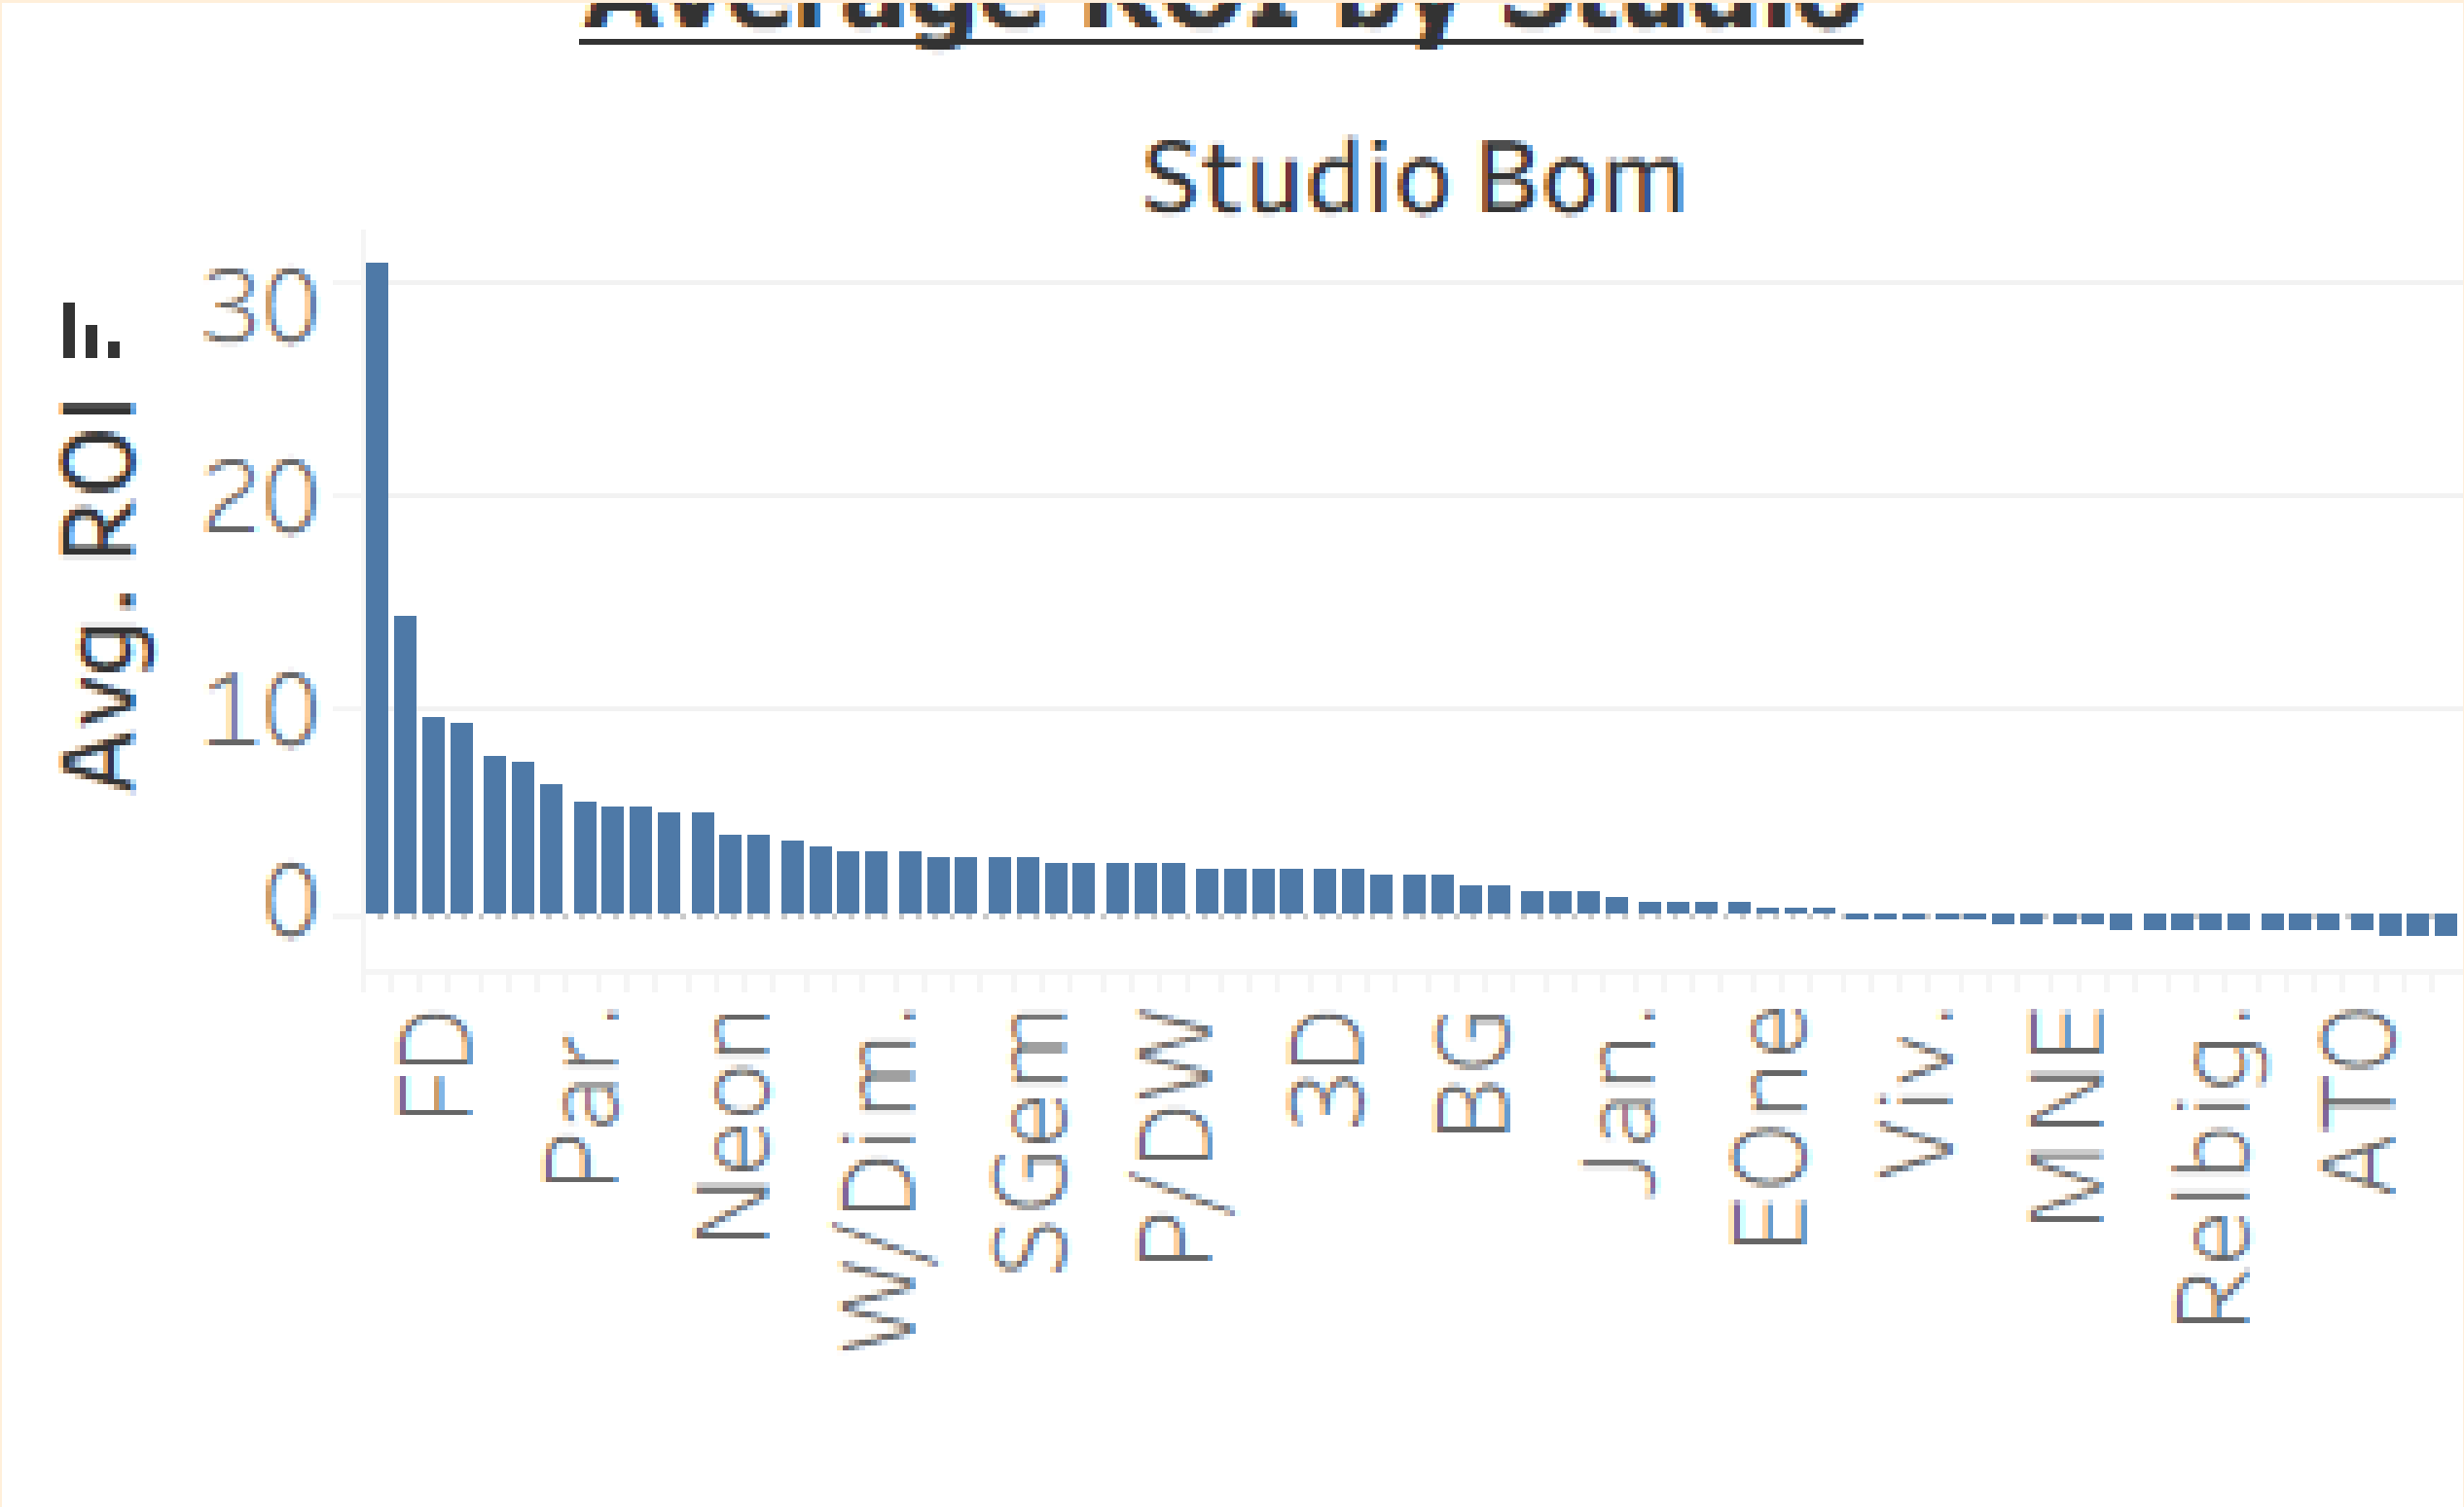

While there's a positive trend between budget and revenue, some lower budget films still outperform, showing smart production and marketing can beat scale

Return on Investment(ROI) by Studio

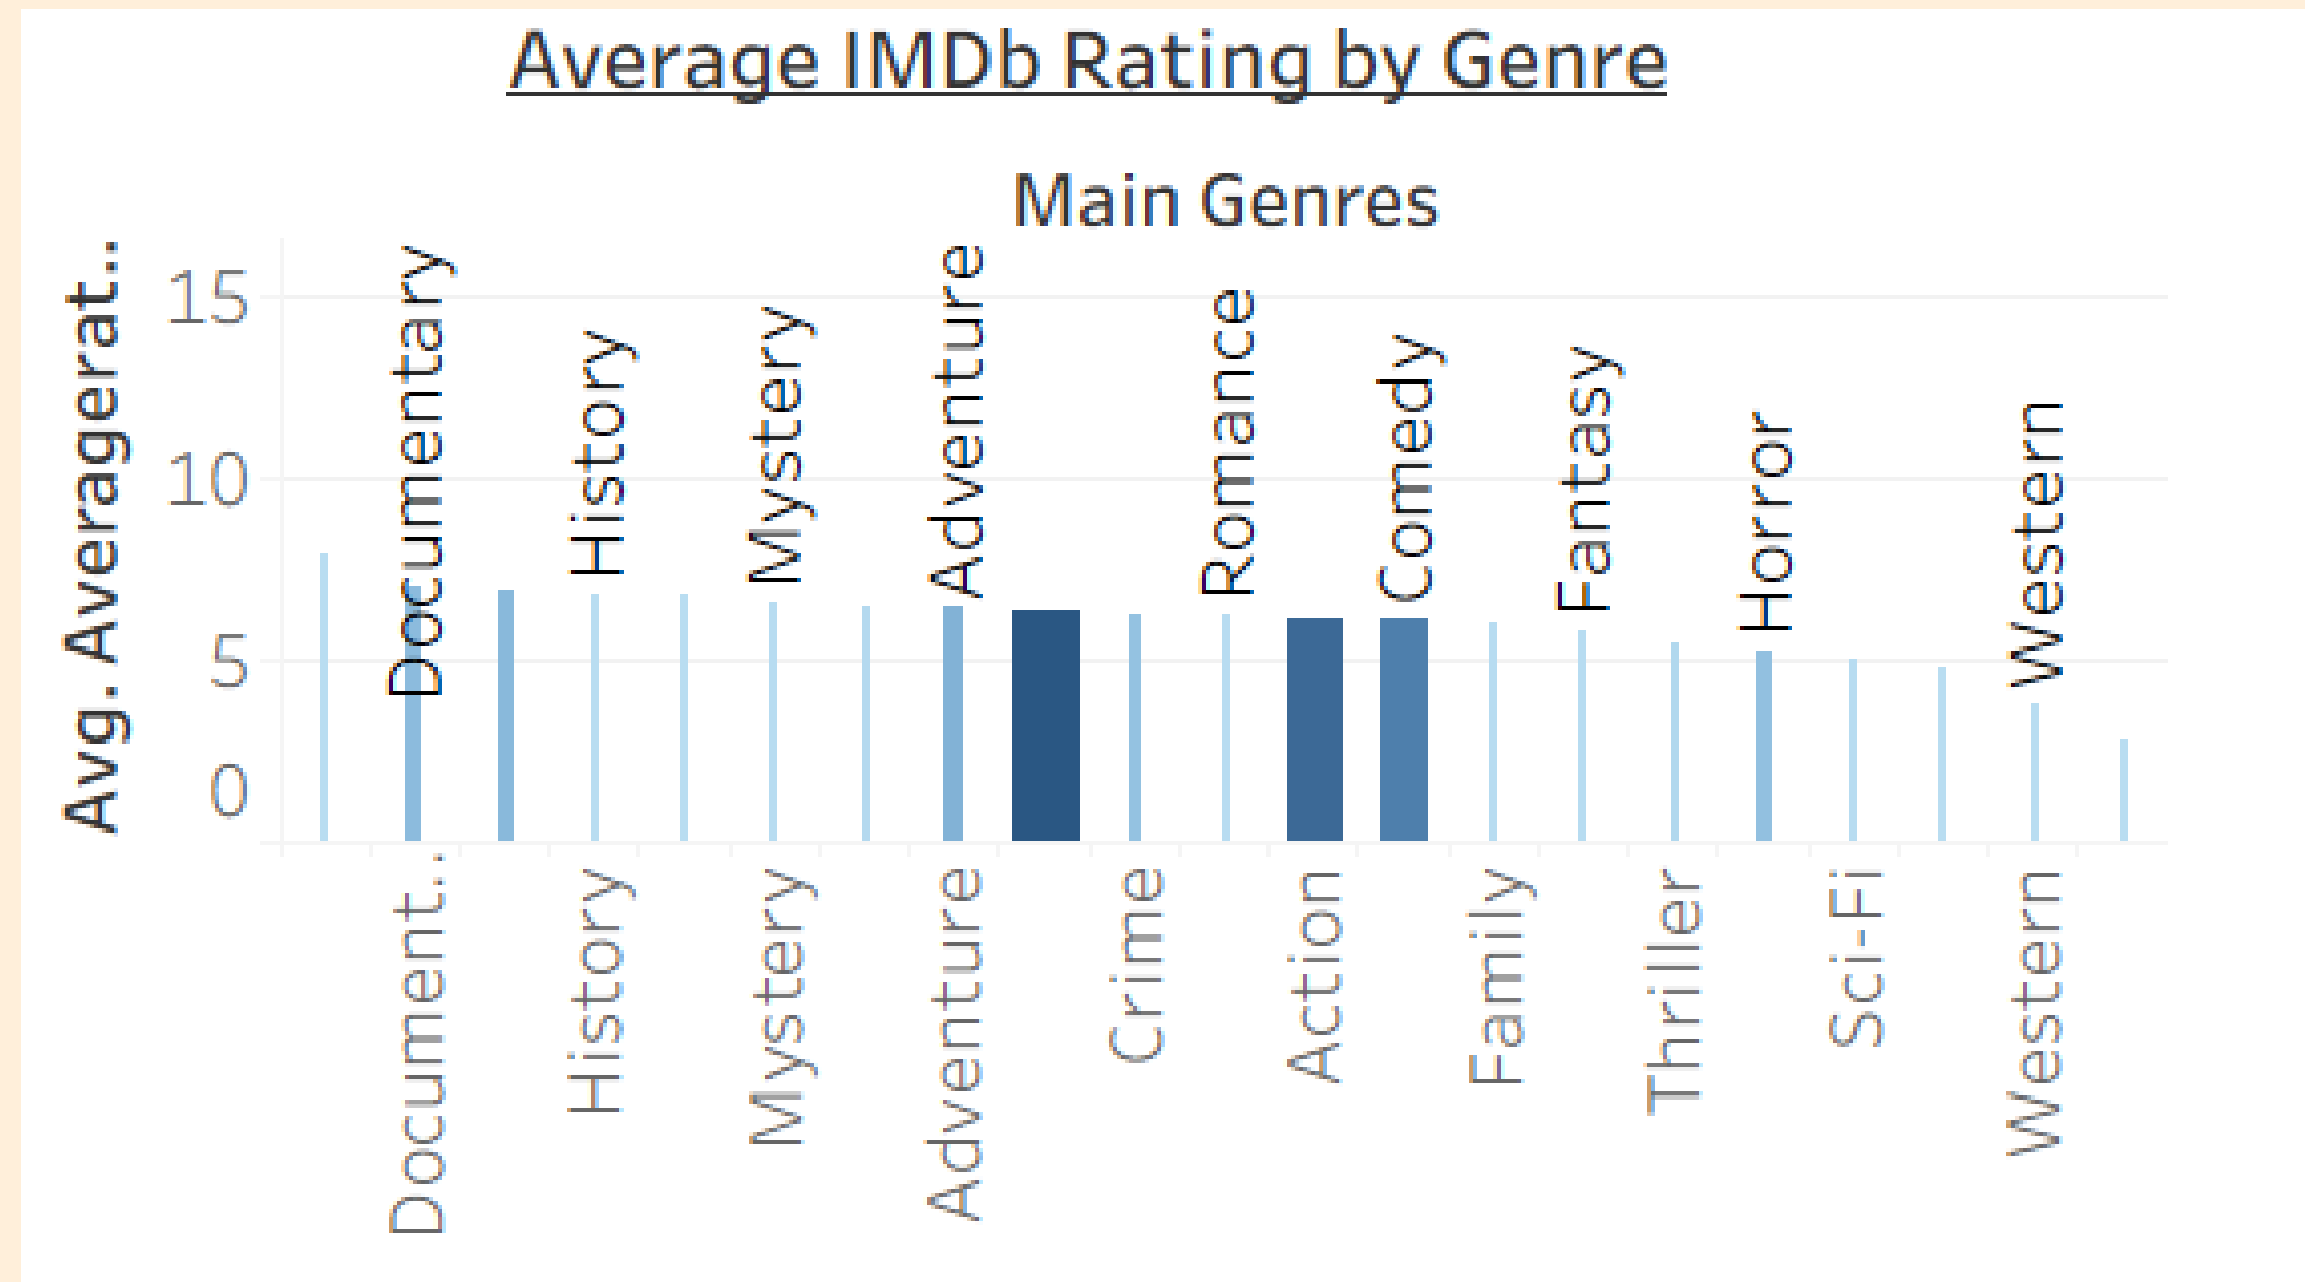

Studios with the best return on investment

Studio BV(Buena Vista) leads in the average ROI, showcasing that efficient budgeting and marketing. Others show mixed performance even with high grossing films.

Viewer Rating by Genre

What Do Audience Rate Highly

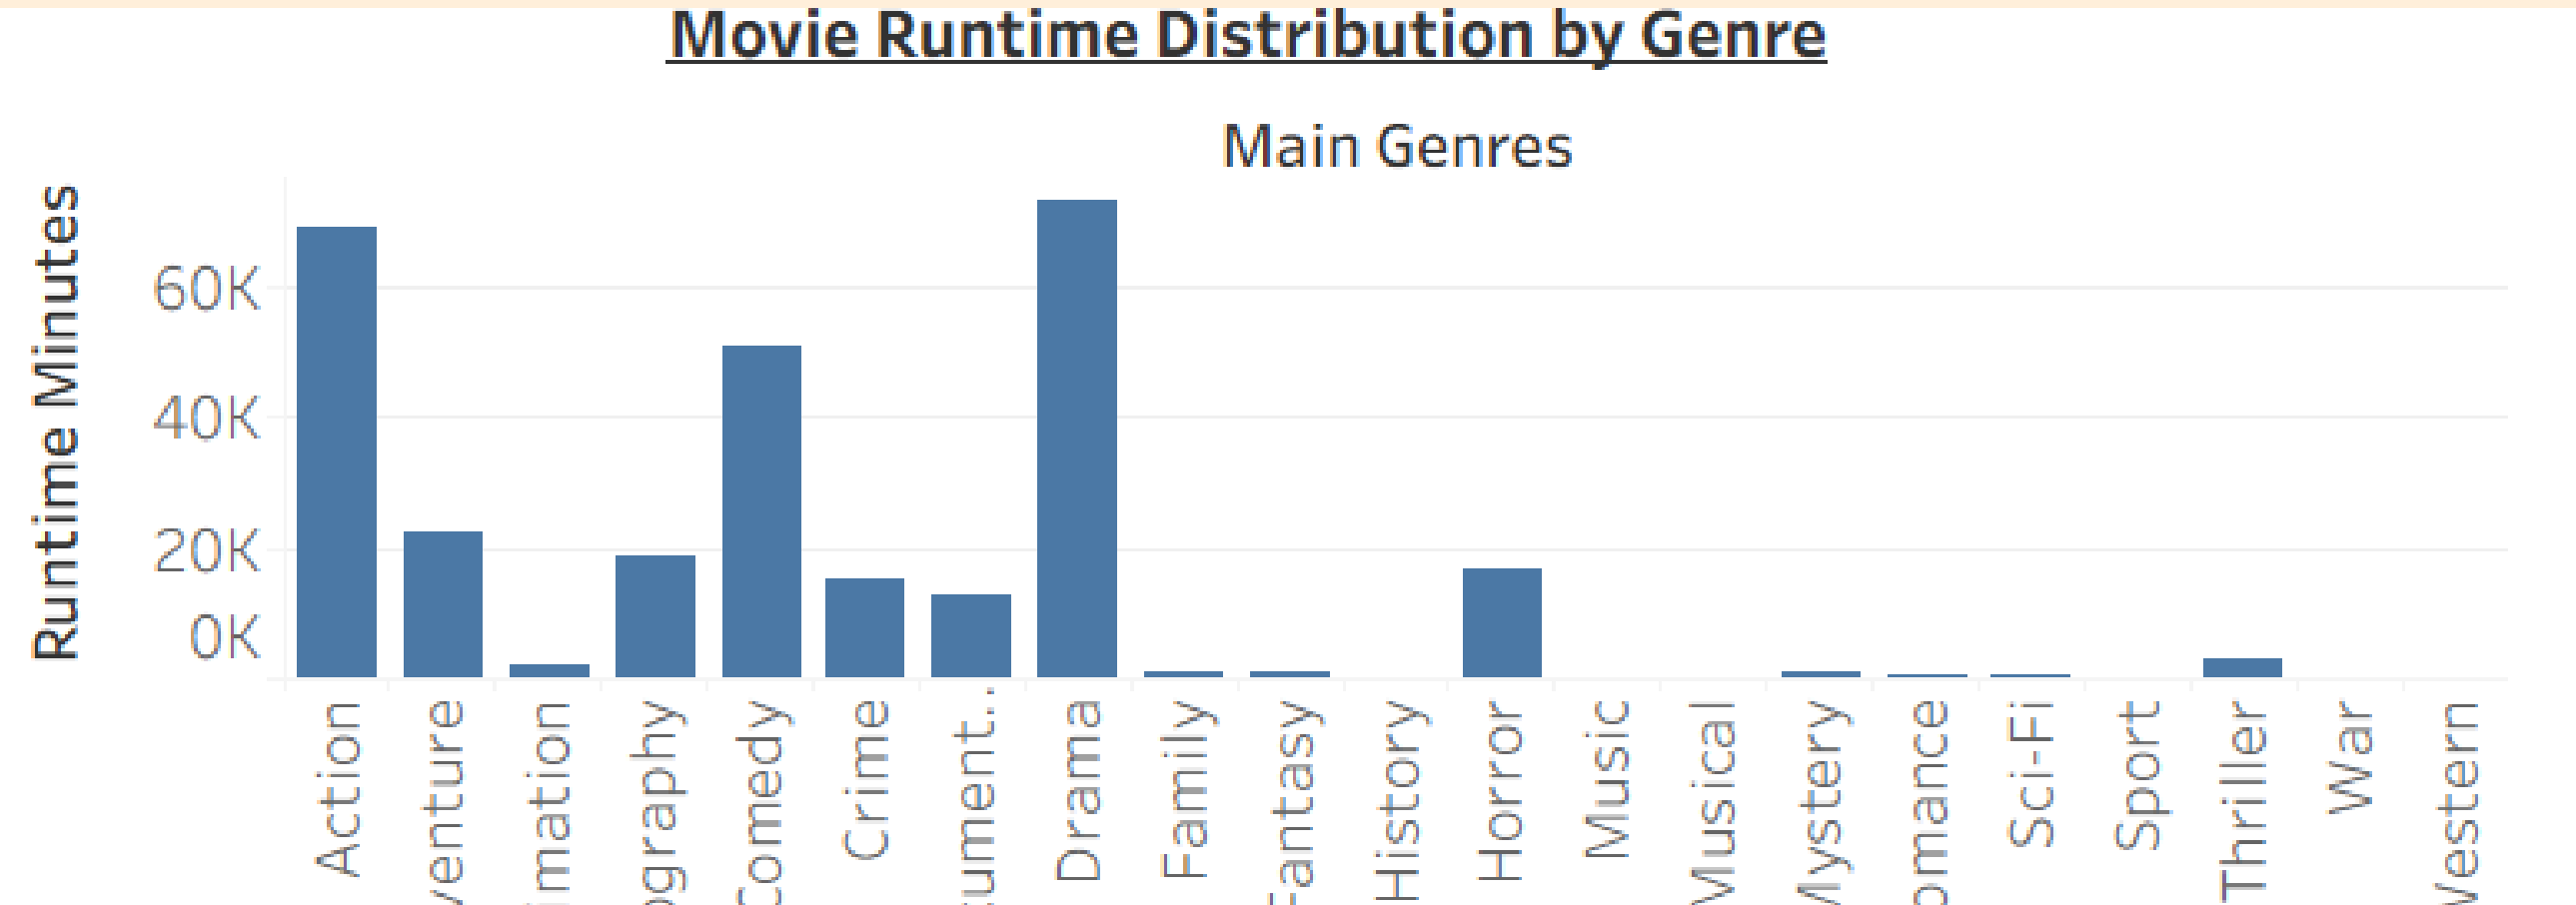

Genres like science fiction(Sci-Fi) and Drama receive higher average IMDb ratings. These genres may resonate more with a certain niche of fan bases.

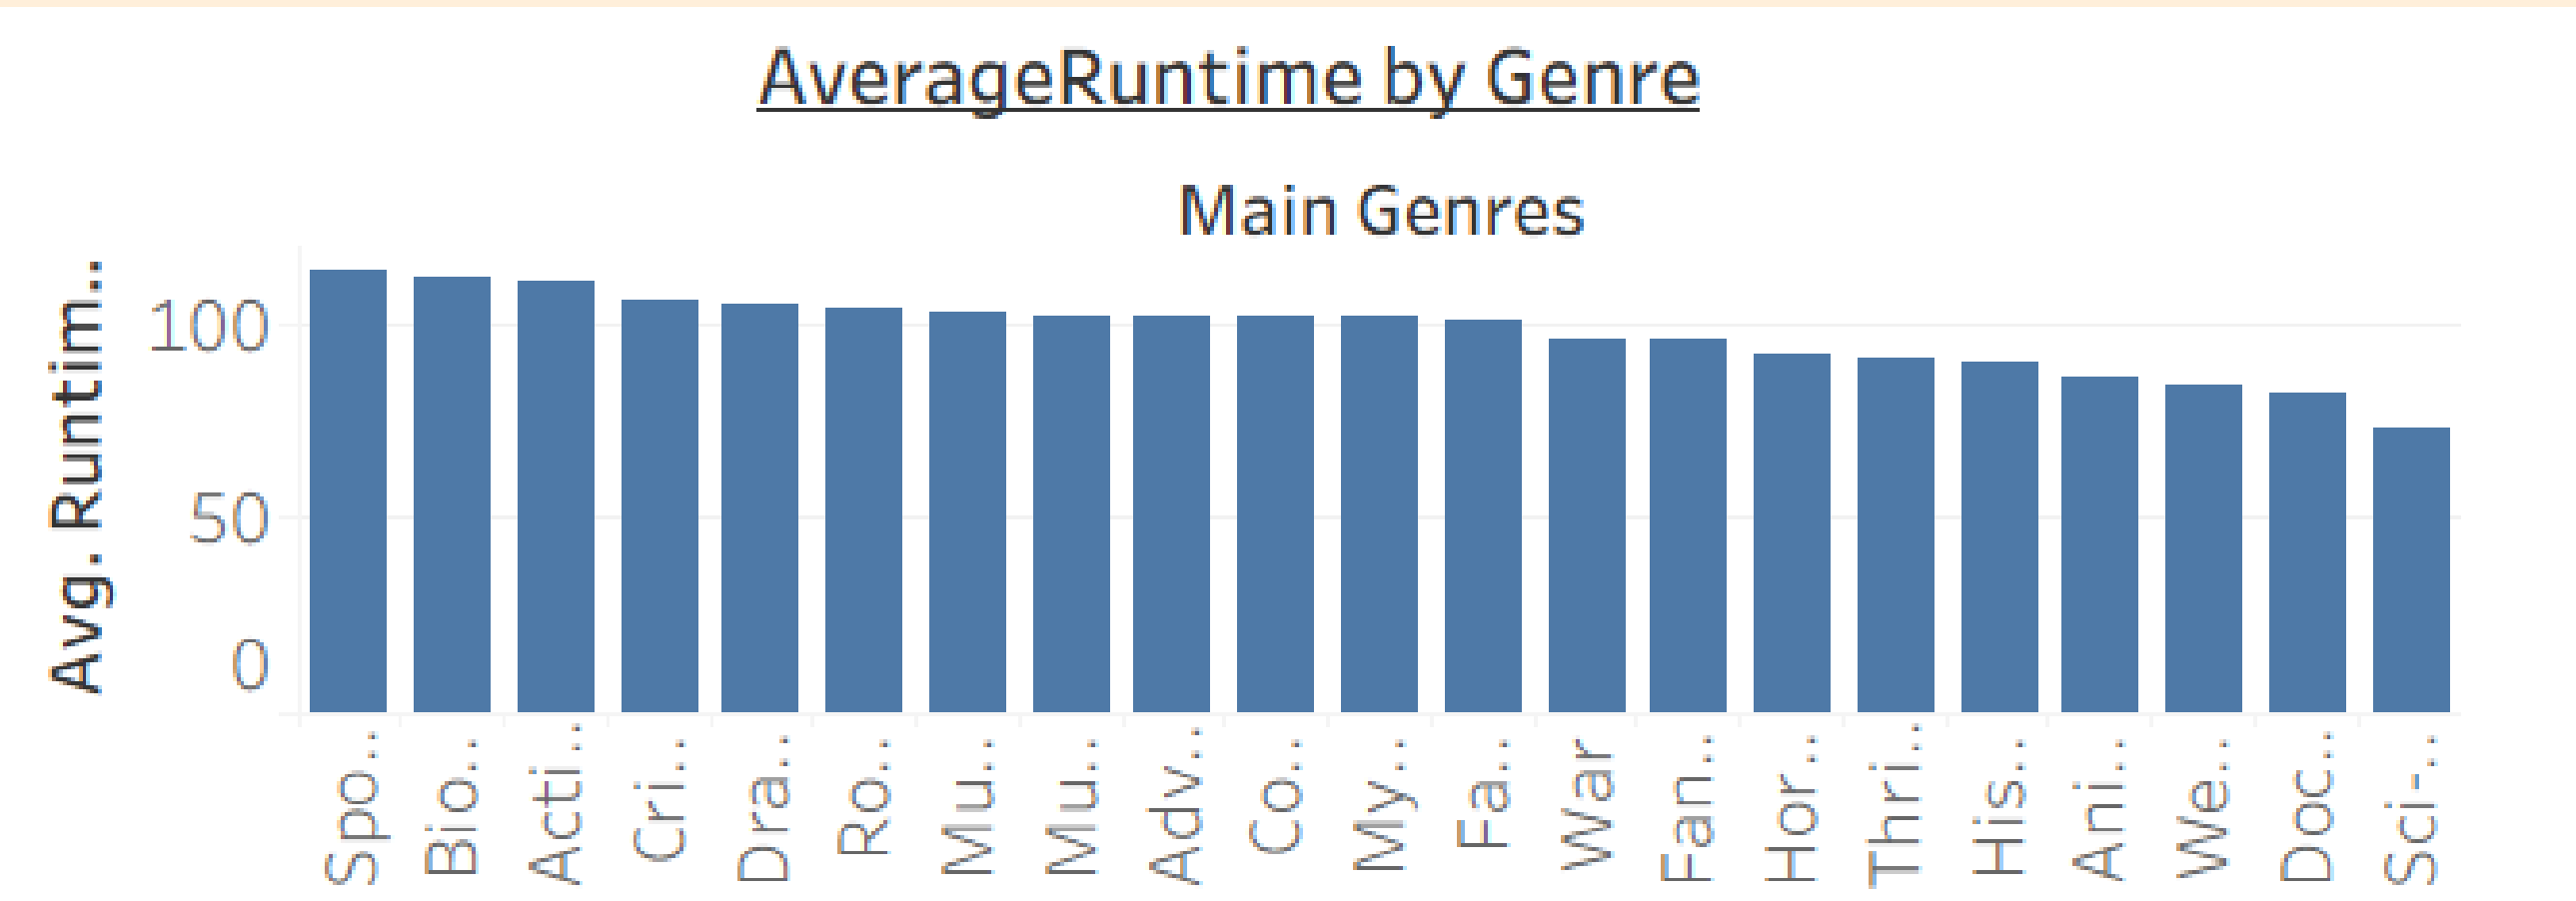

Movie Runtime Patterns

How Long Are Most Movies

Movie Runtime Distribution by Genre

Average Runtime by Genre

Most films fall between 90-130 minutes, with longer runtimes found in Action and Adventure genres. Shorter runtimes are common in Horror or Comedy.

Conclusion & Insights

Key Takeaways

- Action and Adventure dominate profits and budgets
- Studios like BV deliver top ROI
- Movie production peaked around 2011
- High Budget is almost equal to guaranteed success in the film industry
- Viewer ratings don't always align with profits

Strategic Recommendation.

Strategic Recommendations for Movie Studios.

- Focus on High ROI Genres: Action and Adventure continue to yield strong financial returns
- Balanced Budget with market Fit: High budget films have a higher rate of succeeding when the target is global
- Invest in quality and not just in budget as viewer ratings suggest longer runtimes and sci-fi content are favored.
- Diversification of studio portfolios Emerging genres and smaller budgets can surprise with ROI
- Use Data Driven Decisions continuance analyzing performance by genre, studio and year to guide investments.